

Agriculture and Food

Agriculture and Food

If you want to be a leader in agriculture and food, you need to be here. You have direct access to producers and markets. If they aren't already here, they come here for one of the two biggest agriculture shows in the world – The Canadian Western Agribition, and Canada's Farm Show. In Regina you have local access to expertise that is unmatched in Western Canada.

Regina's agriculture and food sector impacts people around the world and offers:

- A prime location with high-quality crops and livestock herds
- A clean environment with a variety of raw materials at competitive costs, including a low cost of doing business
- Access to a hard-working, skilled, educated and productive workforce
- Intermodal, export infrastructure
- Expanding food and ingredients industry offers flour and bakery mixes; peas, lentils and chickpeas; beef, pork and chicken; jams, jellies and other preserves; as well as certified organic meats and cereals (flax, oats, barley and wheat)
- Crop science expertise
- Strong provincial support to assist in lean manufacturing, value-added processing, and research and development
- Head office of Protein Industries Canada, one of Canada's supercluster initiatives

Quick Facts

2,483 employees

$1.06 billion in sales

$341.6 million in GDP

2.3% GDP

"I think the opportunity for Canada is that we're going to be the first stop on the protein highway. The whole game now is about feeding the world, and as we move toward 10 billion people by 2050 I think Regina is going to be the place to be, to make sure that we actually seize that opportunity and we feed the world."

Murad Al-Katib
President & CEO, AGT Food and Ingredients
2017 EY World Entrepreneur of the Year

Economic Development Regina Inc.