

REGINA: Canada's 4th Most Livable City

Regina, Saskatchewan, has secured the 4th spot in The Globe and Mail's rankings for Canada's most livable cities. The rankings, tailored for diverse life stages, highlight Regina's strengths in amenities, a vibrant community, diverse demographics, and transportation. The top cities were determined through an extensive analysis of 439 cities and 43 variables across 10 features. The data-driven rankings consider key factors such as the economy and housing, showcasing Regina's appeal across various aspects of livability.

Regina Rankings by Feature

It's no surprise Regina is ranked #4 for livability. Regina maintains a presence in the top percentile across multiple categories.

Feature	Percentile Rank
Access to amenities	97
Vibrant community	85
Broad demographics	98
Education	97
Access to healthcare	86
Safety	77
Transportation	99
Climate	87

#1

For Entrepreneurs

Economic factors, low commute times and low taxes

#2

For Raising Kids

Affordable housing, access to quality education, higher concentrations of kids

#4

For Young Professionals

Dynamic blend of vibrant job prospects, affordable housing and an active social environment

#8

For Newcomers

Demographic factors, the economy and housing

#13

For Midlife Transitions

Percentage of families without children, economy and health care

#43

For Retirement

Safe and peaceful environment, with good health care facilities, pleasant climate and a range of leisure activities

Our Affordability Story

Regina consistently ranks as the most affordable housing market among major Canadian cities. Add to that one of the highest disposable incomes in Canada, and Regina offers an excellent value proposition.

Sources: Canadian Real Estate Association, Economic Development Regina

Housing benchmark price - October 2023 ($thousands)

